Minister resigns over TPOs affair

MØG, 16-10-317 • Minister of domestic affairs Bos ob Sæak has resigned after parliament expressed strong criticism about the fact that the bad financial situation of the nTaah Polis o Slt (TPOs, Tak National Police) that was discovered four months ago, had been able to go completely unnoticed by the ministry of domestic affairs. Bos ob Sæak's departure is an unexpected turn of events in an affair that so far seemed to have been limited to the TPOs.

nKël Ltens (the Party of the Present, which is currently the largest party in the parliament of Tak) was the first to ask the minister if the ministry really was in the dark about the TPOs's financial situation, and if so, how this could have happened with the National Police being the ministry's main responsibility; even if initial audits of the accounts seemed in order, an organisation as important for Tak society as the police should not have been given the benefit of the doubt, according to the nKël Ltens.

The minister maintained that there was no reason to have any doubt about the accounts in the past few years as they were all approved by the auditors. This year a new team of auditors however found the mistakes in the accounts almost immediately. The nKël Ltens considered these answers unsatisfactory and received support from several other factions in parliament. Seeing what seemed inevitable, minister Bos ob Sæak chose to resign himself rather than be sacked.

His successor will almost certainly be former foreign minister Høek ob A, whom will be asked by parliament to conduct a thorough investigation of the ministry of domestic affairs in order to make sure the corruption of the TPOs hasn't affected it as well.

Loot temple declared unsafe for visitors

LOOT, 29-09-317 • The famous Temple of Loot has been declared off-limits for tourists, the city council of Loot has confirmed after temple site spokespeople warned that some of the ancient construction has become unstable. The site is trying to attract investors to be able to fund a large-scale renovation of the temple.

The Temple of Loot is thousands of years old, and was most likely constructed already before the arrival of the Tak in the area. Very little written evidence from that era has been found on the entire continent, and the temple is too far gone to be able to determine the nature of the religion to which it was connected.

According to official figures, the Temple of Loot attracted several thousands of visitors before the independence of Tak in 308; the number declined in the period that Tak was independent only unilaterally, but rose again last year.
